Grammatical accuracy

As far as I am concernd, I strongly disagree with the statement for two major reasons. First and foremost, it's well known fact that fresh air helps people maintain their good physical and mental health. Therefore, we need more parks instead of paintings or statues whatsoever. The more trees in parks we have, the fresher our cities are. As a result, people shall have more places to enjoy their time in a fresh and cool envionment. Secondly, we need having more quality public transportation because it encourage people to use them more than their private vehicles. It's also one of the best ways to reduce air polluted. All in all, I wholly recommend governments should build more parks in lieu of paintings and statues.
